Trevi Tyger

Character development

Trevi Tyger is a cartoon tiger living in a cartoon universe which is governed by cartoon laws of physics.

He acts and walks in classic cartoon style based somewhat on the classic style of Tex Avery Et al.

He doesn't speak much. He does communicate with signs.

Oddly, an anvil called Iron Annie Villy will fall on his head at any time and from anywhere.

Trevi Tyger eventually becomes aware of Iron Annie Villy as a kind of nemesis.

His world is something of Kafkaesque nightmare because of his relationship to Iron Anni Villy falling on him for no discernible reason.

Initial cartoons containing Trevi Tyger are short (a few 10s of seconds) and involve him being aware of the viewer in some way. Lots of looking into camera for example.

Iron Ani Villy does not need any reason to fall on him but it seems sometimes somehow related but not limited to, the seven vices. For instance, in moments of pride, jealousy or anger etc.

As more and more cartoons are made he will eventually seek try to understand why it is happening to him.

Future of Trevi Tyger character development

In time Trevi Tyger will meet another character (possibly a monkey with the name Virgil or Machiavelli).

Initially he will be in conflict with this character.

In the future, once Trevi Tyger's character is more developed, slightly longer cartoons will be made including the conflict with this new character but still the cartoon will end with Ani Villy falling.

The new character will not be revealed in it's entirety. For instance there might just be a hand striking Trevi Tyger from out of shot. (or water from a hose...or something...but never revealed what the source actually is....might be urine...no one will ever know....or admit to it...even when asked).

Incidences of minor violence towards TreviTyger from the new character will develop both characters further by the way conflicts are played out.

The new character will notice the weirdness of the relationship between Trevi Tyger and Ani Villy. Eventually, the new character will befriend Trevi Tyger and help him to work out why Ani Villy is persecuting him.

The new character will help guide Trevi Tyger on a long journey full of adventure and new conflicts to confront. For example a journey though Hell similar to Dante, Heracles, Aenus and or Perseus.

Game Ideas

TreviTyger Game idea.

“we can think of game emotions as emotions of competition; they are emotions generated due to winning, losing, accomplishment, and frustration.”

<http://lmc.gatech.edu/~cpearce3/DiGRA07/Proceedings/111.pdf> (Emotion types. p2)

TreviTyger appears on screen looking at the gamer (important to make eye contact). The gamer touches the top of the screen and an anvil appears and starts to fall. TreviTyger notices the anvil and takes evasive action in a comically cartoon way. The ways he avoids the falling anvil will have been developed within the cartoon shorts previously made.

The gamer will have a sense of frustration and will try to drop another anvil. TreviTygers actions are repeated. The gamers actions are repeated and so on and so on.

Possible tactics for winning. Each level, The anvils will stay on the ground and the gamer must try to trap TreviTyger to stop him escaping from the anvil dropping. There could be a lifespan on the anvils so that they disappear and allow further possibilities to escape a trapped situation. TreviTyger can climb or jump over them comically.

Additionally, the roles can be reversed so that the gamer is avoiding anvils. Not avoiding anvils can lead to a sense of frustration to the gamer. Seeing how long you can survive may be part of the challenge.

Game Ideas

The game controls will have a degree of lag instilled in them. For instance, rather than just moving left or right there will be some preliminary anticipation type acting from TreviTyger before he moves. These can be randomly programmed into the standard movements of walking running climbing etc. For instance, lifting a leg up and leaning backwards before running forwards. Double takes or screaming etc. Even looking at the gamer and refusing to move as if the gammer is suggesting a bad idea! Holding up a sign maybe “what? Go that way? I’m not going that way you must be crazy!”

These things can increase the level of frustration and add to more button pressing...and swearing :)

This should be fun :)

Foils and Props

Iron Annie Villy

Iron Ani Villy character development Ideas

The Anvil lets call it Annie-Ville or Iron AniVilly works better because of the 'i' and 'y' relation ship to Trev'i'T'y'ger. Additionally, there is some added originality to distinguish it from other cartoon anvil props from other cartoons.

For instance, as the animation shorts develop, TreviTyger can take evasive action. Maybe just side stepping Iron AniVilly as it falls. However, as in nature when prey works out a defence for the hunter, the hunter must adapt. So even though TreviTyger has avoided the first attack a hatch can open some where on Iron AniVilly and a gun appears pointing at Trevi Tyger. So he ducks just as the gun fires. Not to be outdone the gun goes back in the hatch and a knew sci-fi looking gun pops up. TreviTyger is too bemused to avoid this gun. Lets say this gun is a Shrink Ray gun and shrinks him. Then a mortar gun appears and fires a smaller anvil into the air as the shrunken TreviTyger tries desperately to run away in panic which of course ends in the usual dénouement.

Once we have established that the AniVilly can change into things we can do other stuff like drop a Jelly AniVilly, or a Fish Tank AniVilly full of Piranhas or a Shark. Or even Particle AniVilly that is made of sand and is poured over TreviTyger. We can even work from different angles such as an Inflatable AnVilly that activates when TreviTyger stands on it to catapult him into the air.

Foils and Props

Virgyl the monkey

So named because he was once placed in a room with a typewriter for and endless amount of time to see if he could write the complete works of Shakespeare. However, he actually, quite by chance, wrote the Aeneid by Virgil instead.

He has a long career history which accounts for his somewhat, though slightly dubious, sage like wisdom. He was a cigarette tester, astronaut, taught humans how to do sign language (etc...etc...insert monkey history here.... etc)

He has quite literally been to Hell and back so this is why he can guide TreviTyger though Hell relatively unscathed.

He is a Wiley character and can extract himself from any difficult situation with wit and intelligence. He tells stories with the humour of Douglas Adams, Alexi Sayle, Monty Pyton.

Example Story (taken from my facebook comments)

"Don't mention the irradiated sticklebacks! They arrived soon after the Chernobyl disaster. Sucked up from a small pond by a radioactive tornado which resulted from the sudden heat exchange in the atmosphere. A cloud drifted towards Finland and they fell like fiery meteorites from the skies. By this time they had grown into hideously deformed monsters which had a penchant for horribly complicated bureaucracy. Soon they were running the local municipal council. I can't say more...I can see one now heading this way with some form that needs filling in about posting comments on Facebook... No!....Get away! No!....Nooooooooooooo!"

Character Design yet to be decided upon.

Example script

At the gates of Hell

Trevi and Virgil approach gates of hell. They are asked by someone at the gate (Gatekeeper for now) if they have any hope.

Gatekeeper noticing them enter though the gates– Oi you got any hope to declare? You can't go through that gate with hope. Read the sign.

Points to the top of the gate which says 'Abandon All Hope Ye Who Enter'

Trevi looks at Virgil not knowing how to respond.

Virgil produces a sign saying – sorry we can't read.

Gatekeeper trying to be clever, er, how did you make to sign then.

Virgil pulls a card out of somewhere on his person and waves it around in front of the gatekeeper but does not hold it still enough for the gatekeeper to read.

Virgil – Artistic licence!

Virgil just drags Trevi through the gates anyway

Trevi is slightly bemused by the whole encounter

Iron Ani Villy falls on top of the gatekeeper.
